Funke Media Office, Essen

Facts and Figures

Germany's largest newswall in the tower building shows a wide range of possible uses for a building, and the daycare center in the building promotes the work-life balance. The Funke Media Group has built a new corporate headquarters in Essen that offers a creative working environment.

The building has clear structures and public areas such as cafés. It also offers event spaces and high-quality offices with good soundproofing. The unique architecture gives the building a certain lightness. SOMMER worked closely with the architects and the project management of Kölbl Kruse GmbH to develop the technical details of the unusual façade. SOMMER excellently implemented the architectural requirements of the client and developed the building into reality.
